Washington, Dec. 23.—Secretary Daniels today ordered a comprehensive report on award of naval decorations prepared for the information of Chairman Page, of the senate naval committee. It will include all recommendations by individuals or

The order was issued in response to a request from Senator Page which followed criticism of the manner in which some awards were distributed. Part of the criticism was made by Rear Admiral Sims, who commanded American naval forces overseas during the war.

Mr. Daniels declined to comment on the letter on the subject received by him from Admiral Sims further than to say that published excerpts from the letter appeared to be substantially correct although he had not had time to read the communication carefully. In the letter Ad-

Mr. Daniels declined the decoration—a distinguished service medal—today, saying there was no ground that injustice had been done some officers in the distribution of the awards.

"When the list of recommendations is made public," said Mr. Daniels in referring to the report to be sent to Senator Page, "I have no doubt the American people will approve the principle followed and the application of that principle."

Mr. Daniels added that the list already public was in no way final.

All Data to be Gathered.

"1.—All recommendations for awards by admirals, captains, and other commanding officers.

"2.—The action of the board upon all such recommendations, and its complete report.

"3.—The action taken by the department.

"The board of awards did not approve all of the recommendations of the commanding officers. The secretary did not approve all the recommendations of the board. He added names of officers and enlisted men who had performed conspicuous service. After every war there are, of course, differences of opinion as to the award of distinctions.

"It became my duty, at the close of this war, imposed by act of congress, to approve the awarding of medals and distinctions, and I reolved that action should be governed by fixed principles and all in certain classes should be recognized alike. I was also resolved most distinguished honors should be awarded those who were in most peril and who suffered most and gave the most distinguished service."

Two officers who had failed of recognition, coupled with the desire of certain newspapers to stir up trouble, are convinced, however, that the matter is more far-reaching. When an officer of the prominence and distinction of Admiral Sims feels it is necessary to decline to receive the distinguished service medal himself and to repudiate the entire proceedings on the part of the secretary incident to the award, I believe the time has come when the congress and the people are entitled to know

PEASANTS DEFY SEAT OF REDS IN VIENNA

(By Associated Press.)

Vienna, Dec. 23.—The Austrian republic is passing through a "state of crisis" since the stage of the American republic. Provinces are demanding a high degree of independence from the central government and in some of them it amounts to almost complete autonomy. If their demands are eventually granted, the only thing that would be left to the central government would be foreign relations and the regulation of foreign import and export traffic and limited taxation.

The conservative provincial population, the peasantry and bourgeoisie look upon Vienna as the seat and source of the "reds." Feeling is intense against this city, which at present is virtually non-productive, and 200,000 people demanding food, and the province refuse to fulfill the demands made last spring for food supplies.

A communication to a newspaper quotes a speech at a peasants' meeting that expresses the sentiment of the provincials. This speaker said: "We peasants are the masters. We don't consider ourselves with the district commander we do just what we want. We send nothing to Vienna and if they should send the city soldiers out to us we would kick them out. We have already ordered firearms to defend ourselves in case the Viennese should come. Under thousands of crowns we will not give them a good-for-nothing one single grain of corn."

Truck Driver Injured By Running into Cable

Seriously cut about his knees and legs, Dean Garrison, truck driver for the Janesville Sand and Gravel company, was taken to Mercy hospital in the police ambulance at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Garrison's truck into a cable stretched across the street in the vicinity of the Samson plant, the cable damaging the cab and the truck and fracturing his limbs. He was released from the hospital Monday.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

For Girls to Make Homecraft

For Your Christmas Party

By Carolyn Sherwin Bailey

The Christmas party table ought to be the most beautiful decorated one of the whole year. You may have an attractive scheme of decoration, carry it out yourself, and at slight cost. Make some large snowballs of cotton batting, wrapping a snail gift in each. Cover these with white crepe paper, trim them with frost powder to make them sparkle, and pile them in the center of the table. Buy some of the little cardboard holders for sweets known as ice cups. Paint these with water colors in holly red and green, and fill them with snowballs. Place one of these Christmas baskets at each guest's place at the table. These and the snow balls in the center make welcome favors.

A Christmas Tree for Each Guest

Individual paper drinking cups hold these little trees, or the small cardboard flower pots that the green houses use now. Either are easily obtained. Color the cup or pot a bright crimson and fill it with white sand. A wooden meat skewer makes the trunk of the tree. Cut strips of green tissue paper, and fringe them. Coat the skewer with thin glue and wind the fringed green around it until it takes the form and shape of a small evergreen. Then stick it into the sand which holds it straight. These Christmas trees, one at each place, or given as souvenirs at the Christmas party, are a beautiful and practical decoration. The clever girl will be able to attach a small gift to each one or tie candies to them.

Christmas Snappers

Your Christmas party will not be complete without the jolly snappers with fortunes inside. Cut all boys' and girls' names on the old days of Merry England. But why not get the plain ones, a dozen or so, and dress them just as you like? Tie a red or green silk may be fringed and tied around them with holly ribbon. They may be covered with scarlet crepe paper and tied with holly ribbon. A bit of holly may be fastened to each, or a small figure of Santa Claus, cut from a picture postcard may decorate them. Pass a basket of these gay snappers and see the delight of your guests! (Next week: A Costume for Your New Year's Party.)

For Boys to Make Handicraft

Making a Wardrobe Chest

By Grant M. Hyde

For one or two dollars any boy can make a wardrobe chest, so useful and attractive that it will find a place in the finest bedroom. It isn't likely that his mother will let him sell it, but if she does, he will make a good profit. This is how to do it: Go to a drygoods or shoe store and get a good, strong box, 24 to 32 inches long, 18 to 24 inches wide, and 12 to 18 inches deep. Nail tightly all loose boards to make it as strong as possible.

If necessary, get some good three-quarter inch boards from another box for the lid; fasten them together with two or three strong cleats on the under side, making a solid lid that fits exactly and lies evenly. It will be strong because some one will be sitting on it every day. Nail the lid in place tightly; screw on two hinges; pull out the nails; and the top part of the box is done.

Next turn the box upside down and put a cleat on each of the four corners. The ball-bearing castors that are fastened on with small screws are best. Examine the box again and complete the work of carpentry by smoothing off all rough edges and corners.

Cover the box inside and out with cloth stretched tightly and fastened on with small tacks. Any good strong fabric of a serviceable color will be all right; denim is good. It is best to put something on the room when the box is to be kept, the result will be as fine a chest as any mother will want.

PERSONETTE

with a sense of humor is by some considered a rare bird. At least most military officials seem to keep their humor out of their work. This was not true of a certain officer who received from a western post a dignified protest against the way the company hogs were treated, and the ill-condition of the hog pens. This is the letter he actually wrote in reply:

"This office learns with deep regret that decent hogs must pine and fret and lose their chaste and classic beauty, because some man neglects to do his duty. A sense of confidence misplaced, offends a hog's aesthetic taste and every effort should be made, to keep him happy and content."

The fact is not so widely known though in this letter clearly shown, that making the surroundings cleaner, will greatly change a hog's "de-meanor." Although the fact is likewise true, that in the army there are few, expert enough in their profession to rightly read a hog's expression. To tell just where the trouble lies, by contemplation of his eyes, or by the wrinkles of his snout, might stump the average recruit. It has been claimed that hogs will thrive amid surroundings that would drive an animal of lofty pride to early death and suicide. That while his belly is full, he thinks this cleanly stuff is "bull"; that plenty in the way of ents, his cup of happiness complete.

"As these opinions seem to vary, concerning what is necessary, to elevate the moral tone, within the hog's peculiar zone, it is most strongly recommended that hogs in future be attended by men expert in reading faces, who can at once detect the effect of any poor disgruntled hog, that point to mental irritation or porcine trouble or vexation."

"The main consensus of opinion, pertaining to the hog's dominions, (which is perhaps not far amiss) appears to be about like this: Despite all scientific lore, a hog remains just as before. He makes a picturesque display when viewed from very far away; his grunt is musical and clear, providing you are not too near; he smells serenely, sweet and clean; it is proper distance intervene. But not withstanding speculation and philanthropic meditation, and theories of demagogues, most hogs will still remain—just hogs."

Beauty Experts Must Pay $15 Fee

After January 1 it will cost beauty wizards a license to divulge their secrets of perpetual youth according to the state board of health.

The fee for managers is $15, and for operators, $2. Apprentices, too, must have a license. And they can't get the license until they take an examination testing their knowledge of the art of making people beautiful.

Any persons engaged in man-icuring, hairdressing, shampooing, massaging, marcelling, electrolysis, etc., says the law, have to be examined before they can practice on the "phiz's" of lovely and otherwise women.

Two beauty doctors in this city said today that they welcomed the new law as a means of bettering the work which would in time demand that only those who have graduated from some school of cosmetics could practice.

And the law adds that beauty shops which are operated by non-licensed doctors will be closed after Jan. 1, until examinations are taken.

FORMER GAZETTE
EDITOR'S SON DIES

Marvin K. Bowen, former resident of this city, is dead at his home at Tonasket, Wash. The deceased was the son of Hiram Bowen, at one time editor of the Gazette.

He was born here Nov. 19, 1859. An attack of paralysis contracted several years ago caused intense suffering until the end.

Mr. Bowen left this city with his parents in 1873. For a time they lived in the territory that is now the state of South Dakota. While there he entered the government service, becoming the forerunner of established law and order in the yet unsettled country of the distant west.

After leaving South Dakota, he went to the Pacific coast and for some time was engaged in the mercantile business at Raymond, Wash. Later he went to Tonasket at the time of the founding of the town. He established what now has grown to be the largest automobile business in north central Washington. He became one of the largest individual land owners in the country. He took a great interest in irrigation.

A large gathering of friends and relatives attended the funeral. As a mark of respect all business houses in Tonasket closed for a period of two hours during the services and the town flag was flown at half mast.

Several from this city attended the funeral of W. A. Markin, which took place in Egerston Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Burrows, Sharon, spent Monday with friends in Janesville.

Mrs. James W. Crowley, 1008 North street, is confined to her home with illness.

SOLDIER YEARS TO BE REUNITED WITH HIS FAMILY XMAS

From the bluegrass country of Kentucky, came the plea of a soldier yearning to be reunited with his family, Christmas.

Howard Wells, Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., is the chief of police of Janesville to aid him in locating his little sister, Alvira.

He writes that his family moved to Beloit in 1918; that the father was unable to get work which would properly support his family. Then the mother came ill and when funds to pay for attendance were exhausted, she was sent to the Rock county home for the poor. Howard and his brother were sent to the orphan's home at Sparta, but little Alvira was kept with the father to be his housekeeper.

The mother died at the county farm in 1918, Howard writes. He says that he would like to see his little sister, but he could only find Alvira. Chief Morrissey will try to locate Alvira and make the Christmas Howard Wells will be the happiest boy in the world, even if he is in camp.

CITY'S COKE PLACED ON SALE BY DEALERS

Coke which was purchased by the city as partial relief for the existing shortage of fuel was placed on sale today by four dealers who have agreed to collect for consumers and in turn reimbursing the city for its expenditures in securing the eight carloads.

The following dealers have agreed to distribute five of the eight carloads: Brittingham & Hixon, Fifield, Humber, Co., Floreight & Menzies, and others. Cullen and Du Pont companies have been shipping coke since the 15th.

Receipts today were six cars made up of three cars of coke, two of anthracite coal, and one of bituminous.

VOLBRECHT DRAWS 60 DAY SENTENCE FOR STEALING WHISKEY

"It's a sad and weary world, mates. If you don't believe it ask Henry Volbrecht. He though he was going to have a 'wet' Christmas, but he's going to have a dreary, cold one."

Volbrecht stole 24 quarts of whiskey—straight bourbon—on the night of November 22 from the home of Thomas Segel, 420 South Franklin street, while Mrs. Segel was away at the movies.

Yesterday afternoon, Judge H. L. Maxfield in the municipal court sentenced him to 60 days upon his plea of guilty. Christmas will be spent by Volbrecht in the county jail on a bread and water diet, and then he will be put to work at his usual job at the Sampson plant, his wages being sent to his wife at 1109 McKee boulevard sufficient to enable him to live.

Upon the discovery of the theft, Chief Thomas Morrissey following up a clue that two men had been seen intoxicated and offering to sell whiskey at $10 a quart, arrested Volbrecht at his home. Search failed to reveal the stolen whiskey. Volbrecht admitted the theft when taken to the police station. Later 11 full bottles were found on the railroad tracks near his home.

The supply is now securely locked up in Judge Maxfield's safe at the city hall.

Safety for Your Invested Funds Means Contentment

You undoubtedly appreciate the satisfaction of knowing you have made a safe investment.

Throughout the whole country there is noticed a marked tendency to turn from speculative to sound investments, and people generally are investing their surplus funds with more care toward safety.

As a result the First Mortgages and First Mortgage Bonds of the Gold-Stabek Company are in greater demand than ever before, their known worth together with a liberal income of 6% safeguarded as they are by a strong and responsible company, makes them an investment to be highly desired.

These mortgages have back of them the business experience of over a quarter century of experts in the farm mortgage business. They are secured by the most stable and necessary thing in all the world—productive, valuable, improved farms operated by owners of excellent reputation who have made a success of farming and have ample equipment to carry on their farming operations.

In the 25 years we have sold these securities not one of our customers has ever lost a penny on our mortgage; they have always received their interest promptly when due, it being collected for them free of charge, and all other details in connection with the mortgages have been attended to by us at our free

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in a hard position and don't know which way to turn. About a year ago I married and my husband and I continued to live with my mother because she is a widow and needs us with her. My brother lives in the home, but he is only seventeen and cannot contribute to mother's support.

Last spring I had the influenza and since then have been in very poor health. Because of this mother takes breakfast for the boys. She does the smallest thing I have ever heard of. She serves first class fruits and foods to my mother and seconds to my husband. Otto is put on his butter plate while my brother has the best creamery butter. I have spoken to mother time and time again. It seems to me terrible that my husband who pays for every bit of food we buy should be treated in such a manner.

Now my husband has announced that he will not live in mother's home any longer. He says we will get a small apartment and he will get his own car. He also says he will contribute one-fourth toward mother's support. I have three married sisters and in says mother will have to live with one of them or they will have to help keep her where she is.

Mother's heart is broken and she begs me not to leave her. She promises that she will not treat my husband so again. She has promised this before and has broken her word. What shall I do?

DAUGHTER AND WIFE.
Go with your husband. He is very generous in his treatment of your mother. It seems to me. Most men, if they were treated so meanly would not offer to contribute toward the support.

Your mother will have to learn from suffering that it was dishonorable.

SIMPLE FROCK OF RUFFLED TAFFETA

By ELOISE.

Tricotettes and duvetyns and satins and all the other fabrics, including georgettes may come and go but taffeta is always with us. It is always smart and always practical and serviceable. What more could anyone ask of a fabric? A simple taffeta frock is an indispensable garment in every feminine wardrobe for it can be pressed into service in any emergency. For the woman who travels or the miss at school there is nothing quite so satisfactory as a taffeta frock. It is good at any hour of the day and needs but little attention save the usual cleaning and pressing.

There is a very youthful model which employs the over popular dances to form the skirt. The blouse is a plain bodice ending slightly below the natural waistline. The square neck and short sleeves are edged with knitted pleating as are the three dances of the skirt. Aside from this pleasing there is no trimming save the narrow sash of gold moire ribbon with beaded edges which ties loosely as it with studied carelessness at the right side. The style and lines of this frock while extremely youthful would be becoming to almost any type of figure except that of the stout matron.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

"I don't like to tell you this, Ann," Eric repeated, "but you won't see the truth until it's forced upon you. I felt he was going to tell me something pleasant about my husband and with all my heart I wished he would not. My mind did not revolt so much against knowing as I justly feel about him as it did against Eric feeling it necessary to tell me to gain his own ends."

"You can't always know what is the truth, Eric and don't you think it is better sometimes not to know it?"

"Perhaps, but not in our case. If you knew your husband was disloyal to you would it make no difference? Wouldn't it lead you to follow the path I have pointed to—Eric, I may be a strange creature, Eric, I answered, "but it often seems to me a husband can wrong his wife much more deeply than by being disloyal. I suppose every woman wants to hold supreme place in the heart of the man she marries. I have seen unhappy men who I have seen husbands who broke no marriage vow, yet tormented their wives with a hundred other vices and in the end were put right up to me, I am not sure how I should feel."

"Then I shall put it up to you, and you know, Ann, while you were in Atlantic City I saw your husband twice—once at a restaurant, once at a theater—with a woman."

A wave of weariness and disgust swept over me. Oh, the age-old "triangle"—the man, the woman, the other one. Yet the nausea of the soul which nearly overwhelmed me did not come, I swear, from jealousy, but from the cheapness of Eric's disclosure. Moreover, it did not in the least convince me.

"Why don't you speak, Ann? I am distressed at having to tell you this but I want you to know. I think I have wanted you every moment of the seven years since that summer you were in England."

"I come to my lips to say, 'Then why did you not tell me?' But a surprising indifference enfolded me. Eric's voice was as beautiful as ever, his manner as thrillingly devoted. Whatever mad thoughts I may have had respecting him appeared to have vanished. Only a sort of tiredness remained. 'You spoke of liberty once, Eric,'

I finally answered. "And I agreed with you that the lack of liberty in marriage usually means is what makes so many marriages fail. I cannot see why a man and woman, though married, should not have the companionship of other persons of opposite sex. If you saw Jim with another woman it may or may not mean anything disturbing to me. Jim probably has acquaintances—business friends, or people he knew in the west—whom he had a perfect right to meet."

"That was not a business woman," persisted Eric. "I know her name; she is Mrs. Frisbie."

The name arrested my attention instantly. She is the woman I bought the purse for last Christmas a year ago—the wife of the man who gave him his first job.

"You—you don't—mind?" breathed Eric, watching my face narrowly. "No," I shook my head slowly and smilingly. "Why should I mind; I, who am walking here with you?"

Jiffy-Jell brings you real-fruit flavors—not the artificial. Each package contains a bottle of fruit juice condensed.

Try One Fruit Free

Present the coupon to your grocer this week. He will give you a full-size package of Jiffy-Jell in Loganberry or Pineapple flavor free. We will pay him for the free package.

Jiffy-Jell comes in many fruit flavors, but the choicest are Loganberry and Pineapple.

You will find in each package a bottle of the fruit-juice flavor in liquid form, condensed.

The Jiffy-Jell mixture is ready-sweetened, acidulated and in proper color. Simply add a pint of boiling water, then the flavor from the real, and let cool.

See what you get—a real fruit dessert for six people. It will have a wealth of fruit. It will change your whole conception of quick gelatin desserts.

Note that this offer is made on two flavors—on Loganberry and Pineapple only. Your grocer has no right to offer another. We want you to know Jiffy-Jell at its best.

Then always remember that this real-fruit dainty is ever at your command. It will bring you the joy of real fruit. And it will cost you when you buy it, only a few cents per dinner. It will cost you less than the fruit alone which we use to make the flavor.

Modified Milk Would modified milk do to raise a baby on from his second week? In order to get vitamins in the food we thought best to start it right instead of using condensed milk as we did with the other child, whose condition we can now see, is far from vigorous and healthy. (Mrs. H. G. C.)

Answer—You have made a wise decision. It is well to start with a weak mixture and increase the strength as the weeks pass. For a baby only the weeks the weakest milk modification is best. In most cases it is well to start with a formula of about the normal strength for a baby half the age and increase weekly until the baby is taking the formula appropriate to his age and development. Here is a table showing the formulas which may be considered about right for babies of different ages.

Every baby at four months should be given each day a teaspoonful of one of any fruit juice, such as orange juice, peach juice, grape juice.

At six months it is well to begin giving the baby a spoonful or two of well cooked vegetable strained through a sieve.

IS CANNED FOOD SAFE?

Home canned food is more likely to be perfectly safe when canned, and therefore free of the danger of bacterial growth before the canning process; but food canned in the home is more likely to be successfully sterilized by the canning process, and therefore free of the danger of bacterial growth in the food after it has been canned.

In January, 1919, four persons died in Boise, Idaho, as a result of eating home canned asparagus which was served in salad just as it came from the can, without cooking. The asparagus had been canned by the cold pack method, with no sterilization (or rather an unsuccessful attempt at sterilization, as events proved). Five persons partook of the asparagus; four died within 36 hours, and the fifth was unaffected. When the asparagus was opened it smelled spoiled; but the host felt sure it was not spoiled, because she had it herself. It did not begin to taste right. The first symptoms noted, in two of the cases seen by Dr. S. M. Forney, were choking sensations and a feeling as if the throat or tongue were swollen, some 16 hours after the asparagus had been eaten. Then a feeling of weakness, slow, and upward from the legs, the voice became husky and was lost, breathing labored, but the mind remained clear. Death resulted from choking, due to paralysis of the throat.

Another of the patients was seen by Dr. H. M. Holmerson, the symptoms being about the same, swallowing being impossible, the breathing became slower and slower and more labored, until death followed from complete paralysis of respiration.

The cause of death in these cases was botulism, the bacillus botulinus being detected in the asparagus by government experts at Washington, D. C. These experts noted that samples came from the same lot, furnished by a member of the family, had a marked unpleasant odor when opened—which, it itself, ought to be sufficient to condemn any canned food as unfit to eat. Incidentally they mentioned an instance of fatal food poisoning reported by Dr. E. C. Dickson, in which a woman died after tasting two spoonfuls of suspicious canned corn as it came from the can.

Botulism depends more upon the condition of the food before it is canned than on the canning process. Dirty, wilted, slightly rotted food carries multitudes of bacteria into the cans and some of these may survive any process short of steam pressure sterilization as employed in modern factories. Tables, utensils, jars, hands, even flies, may be a source of contamination in canning.

Cooking usually destroys toxin or poison, if any is present in food as it comes from the can; but cooking would not certainly destroy spores of bacillus botulinus. If the food gives off an unpleasant odor, if there is a spurt when the can is first open, if the food is found soft and mushy, the food should be discarded.

In some cases the source of contamination has been traced apparently to well water on the premises, which in turn has been polluted by human sewage.

water. Then I also groped my way sharply shelving bank into the stream. Tim chose his course near his lead closely, guided largely by the splashing of Missie's animal through the shallow water. Our movement was a very slow and cautious one. Kennedy having frequently to assure himself that the passage ahead was safe. Fortunately the bottom was firm and the current not particularly strong, the greatest difficultie being the low-hanging branches which swept against us.

I think we must have waded thus to exceed a mile when we came to a ork in the stream and plumped into a tangle of uprooted trees, which aded our further progress. Between he two branches, after a little earch, we discovered a gravelly each, on which the horses' hoofs ould leave few permanent marks.
Beyond this gravel we plunged into an open wood to compete to grope tightly. Tim and I both afoot, and constantly calling to each other, so as not to become separated, I had lost all sense of direction, when this force finally ended, and we again emerged upon open prairie, with a myriad of stars shining overhead.

THE WISHING PLANE
BY WILLIS WINTER
The next day, too, Jack and Jane and their friends spent in the huge airplane. Captain Brave told the children to study their lessons early so that they could leave Athens quite a while before noon. This, of course, caused their curiosity, but, try as they could, they couldn't get Captain Brave, or Ladydear, either, to tell where they were going. So, it wasn't until everyone, including Booh, was seated in the plane that the captain said:
"We're going now to Mount Olympus, where all the gods and goddesses lived, according to the old Greek stories."
Captain Brave steered the big plane north and west from Athens and showed the children on his chart that they were bound straight for the mountain.
You would have thought that Booh knew everything that was going on for, too, climbed onto the seat beside Captain Brave and stuck his nose up under the captain's arm so that he could see the chart. When Jane pointed to Mount Olympus on the map, Booh barked, as much as to say, "Oh, yes."
And, by the way, Booh seemed to be as glad as the children to be flying about the country once more. The long stay in Naples had been too much for him. There were no other dogs about who cared to play with him, because he was a stranger. I suspect, or, maybe Booh didn't like them. And, because the children were away, he couldn't play with them. Ladydear and Captain Brave tried to amuse him and even played hide and seek with him a few times, just as Jack and Jane usually did every day, but Booh would leave

Want to Feel Just Right

Take an NR Tonight

JUST TRY IT AND SEE how much better you feel in the morning. That "I-headsachy, tired, don't-know-what-the-matter feeling will be gone—you'll feel fit TROUBLE IS, your system is clogged with a lot of impurities that your over-worked digestive and eliminative organs can't get rid of. Bile, oil, salts, calomel and ordinary laxatives, cathartics and purges only force the bowels and prod the liver.

Doctors' A.R. Tablets (NR Tablets) acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and even kidneys, not forcing, but toning and strengthening these organs. The result is prompt relief and real, lasting benefit. Make the test. Nature's Remedy will act promptly, thoroughly, yet so mildly, so gently, that you will think nature herself has come to the rescue and is doing the work.

And oh, what a relief! You'll be surprised to find how much better you feel—better, better every way. If habitually or stubbornly constipated, take one N.R. tablet each night for a week. RESERVATIONS GOING FAST FOR BIG GAME IN ARMORY NEW YEARS

One hundred reservations have already been made for the big basketball game on New Year's day at the armory here between the Lakota Cardinals and the Red Crowns of White Star. Hardly had the news gone the rounds that this eventful game had been booked than the managers of the local club received telephone and personal calls requesting tickets to be held for enthusiastic fans.

Despite the fact that the pasted-up tickets are at $1, the orders kept coming in this morning. The announcement that there would be only a few general admissions is thought to have something to do with this.

One of the few things upon which the Red Crowns insist is that there be no over-crowded house that will hinder the men upon the court. Because of this condition, the number of seats to be sold will have to be limited.

The big sporting event was the subject of conversation in many men's circles last night. Not only does the contest promise to be a historic one from the class of the teams, but the interest displayed indicates that the "Whiting" management may have to stretch its ideas on crowded houses to permit the public to be content.

Tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow morning at all the cigar stands in the city and a large number of the barber shops.

As You Were!

BUCK OF THE STARS AND STRIPES A. E. F.

AFTERMATH
I never set the world on fire,
I just went on from day to day,
They told me I was worth my hire,
I used to draw a man-size pay.

And I was pretty much content,
I did my work, I had my fun;
And if my job got slow, I went
Elsewhere and got a better one.

I had my friends as most men do,
I liked them all and they liked me,
I liked the girls. At least a few Liked me—and one especially.

My path was never very rough;
It wasn't hard, and when I tried
I always got my share; enough
To make a fellow satisfied.

And then one day I took a chance;
The biggest job, the smallest pay
I ever got—I went to France
As rear-rank private, U. S. A.

It wasn't what they wrote about;
Behind the lines or at the front—
You knew Death made the roster out,
And, if your name was there, you'd go.

Now nothing seems to be the same,
Something inside of me is gone;
I can't get back into the game—
The game of—well, just living on.

Ex-Sergt. SOL says the Old Town was a lot changed when he got back. He went down to the Tensorial Parlors to get an old-time once-over, but "Curly," the barber, who fought in Cuba, never once told that story about the engagement where his company lost fifteen men in half an hour.

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT?
It was the first night in the zone. The Master-at-Arms had belovely his last warning: "No more amo-e-oking on open decks!" and the thick dark and the thicker atmosphere shut out the shade of the nearest stanzas. Gradually everybody "piped down" and pretended that he was asleep, and that he wasn't wearing his life preserver in addition to all the rest of equipment C that was metal.

At a sudden there was a swish and a slap and a yell from the men sleeping in the staterooms on the port. The ship rolled and there was a yell from the bottom layer on the starboard. A little ocean was loose and you knew we were torpedoed. There was a dangerous calm that said that he wasn't wearing his life preserver in addition to all the rest of equipment C that was metal.

"Hey, youse on the other side," he sings out, "stop me shoes when they come over on the next wave!"
A laugh went up, and just then a C. P. O. and a sailor with a blue flash came stopping through the water.

"Pipe down sojers, he sang out, "somebody left a ventilator open. We ain't sinking."
And we piped.

And while you're remembering, remember that little sheet they printed on the transport George Washington, called the "Hatchet"? Here's a rhyme from it:

MOTHER GOOSE AT SEA
Sing a song of sisters,
Seven Ships at sea,
Semiphring chatily
"Tres bien" and "Ouh!"

When the night has settled
Silence rules the deep—
"Cause the Hun might catch you
Talking in your sleep.

HIGH SCHOOL MEN CALLED TO PRACTICE
Coach Crabtree this morning issued a call to all basketball men of the high school for practice to be held each night during the holidays at 6:30. The practice starts tonight at the school gym.

During the next two weeks the team will be drilled hard in an endeavor to whip it into better shape so as to take the winning end of games. The coach believes that he has good material among his men which needs just a little drawing together to make it a strong combination.

SAMSON GIRLS BEAT GAZETTE BOWLERS

With Miss Myhr rolling 153 and making an average of 122 in a two-game match between the Samson Tractor Girls' bowling team and the girls of the Gazette last night, Samson took two straight. The match was held at the West Side alleys.

Mayor Thomas E. Welsh was an interested spectator for part of the evening.

The Samson girls did not bowl up to their usual, Miss Donahue especially failing below her usual record. The Gazette girls, while they did behind last night, show encouraging improvement in form.

Spilling 'em

It's funny how some fellows tell you not to put their name in the paper.

Take Schumaker, for instance. He says: "I don't care how much you kid me, if you do put something in, it's going to be posted right there in the show case."

Alright, paste this in "Schoolie."

One of the Gazette girls couldn't find the headline. Perhaps it was because she lives on a farm and was sending the ball hay-ward.

Want to hear a lusty voice? Listen to Kerchoff yell "zowee!" when he gets a strike.

Miss Myhr throws the ball like a veteran.

Lampert, Ryan, Cornell, and a few others, they all beat "Hank" last night "chuckin'" the ball.

Slow, but sure, that's the way Miss Donahue rolls 'em down.

"I'm mad," said Miss Wheaton, when she made a strike.

French wanted to know why we visit the alleys on Monday night. Why do WE, Lewis?

Mary bowls as if she were Reardon on the alleys.

"Ain't it awful?" Ask Miss Brady.

GOLDFISH WIN EASILY OVER SCHUY'S COLTS

Rolling 2501, Robbins' Goldfish defeated Schumaker's Colts by 239 pins at the West Side alleys last night. Cornell made the highest score at 237. His average was 213.
